Scanner Reports 7-13-15

updated: Jul 13, 2015, 7:00 AM

Roger the Scanner Guy

Monday-Monday. Hope everyone had a good weekend. Mine's the same as all the others. On Facebook just about everyone has a page for their hometown. My hometown has always had a lot of crime which is one of the reasons I'm interested in crime. Before I was born, the gangsters ruled the Chicago area and the suburbs including Hammond, Gary, and East Chicago, Indiana. John Dillinger not only broke out of our Lake County Jail, carving a bar of soap to look like a gun, he hid out across the street from my mom when she was a little girl in Hammond. It was all around me as a kid. Living back there, a couple Uncles were cops; one was a step Uncle, Robert Schaller who was on the show "Top Cops" as an Arson and Bomb investigator for Chicago PD. Long dead now, never forgotten. My other Uncle, John Mahoney was Chief of the Hammond PD back in the 50's. Back then Hammond was a lot mellower than it is today.

Someone posted a news story about the crime in Hammond today on the Hammond page on Facebook. Everyone was commenting about it. One fella says that the police or powers that be downplay the crime there it's hidden from the media. There is a lot more crime than is reported. I found what he said shocking because I have always known my hometown to have a lot of crime. Some of the people commenting I went to school with 45 years ago. I decided to post a comment about some of the things we do here to prevent crime, although I know they have programs like Neighborhood Watch back there. I wrote a nice little thing about watching out for your neighbors etc. When I clicked to put it up, Boing! The thread was gone.

Someone told me the powers that be don't want people to know about the crime in Hammond. Well gee, it was only on the National News a couple times last week: 2 Murders on the same block in 24 hours, how are they going to deny that? So Ladies and Gents, denial truly happens everywhere, even in Crime Central. But let's be real for a second. Nothing bad happens everywhere in these Un-United States of America. HA! These Un-United States will never be United again as we all sink into this muck. Denying crime is not going to solve it. It's burying the problem. Sooner or later it's just going to pop up again. Probably as something worse somewhere else. The powers that be don't seem to care, let the next generation deal with it that is what these actions tell me. Some people might question the need for police when there seems to be such little crime but crime exists. Don't believe me, look around for yourself. It's here to stay as the Business of Justice exists so does the business of crime. Everyone has got to turn a buck somehow someway the more the merrier. Maybe there are other reasons that the amount of crime is denied in this country. Out of sight out of mind I guess. It doesn't happen in some places but it will someday. The next generation might pass it off to the next generation so on and so forth or maybe the best solution is to just maintain and hope for the best.

So, I guess we'll be on the lookout for a Mercedes with license plate covered with paper!!!! (I'm making a joke people - I'm sure they will drive fast, pull over, remove paper).

Last week, I had 2 adult females, wearing frumpy clothes, come to my place, 2 separate times in one week, stayed on my front porch for almost 5min, then left. Caught on my security camera. A friend thought it was very suspicious and encouraged me to report it, so I did. Barely got any interest from the Police. Police didn't ask me any questions, but only perked-up a little when I asked THEM if they wanted the license plate #. But, the 2nd time the women came, they were in a different car and I couldn't get the plate#. Makes it even more suspicious now that they came in a different car. There were other passengers, but I couldn't get a good look at them because of darkened windows. Anybody else out there have a similar experience?

I don't have a security camera but I know people go weewee in the driveway and do other thangs not so cool..One morning at 3am I chased a guy out of the driveway with a pic axe. There had been a rumor going around that I killed 2 guys found in barrels next to my car 10 years ago. Rumors are good but I didn't do the deed..The guy I chased had an expensive stolen bicycle I turned it over to the coppers...Same guy told me he lost 40. bones 2/ 20's one night I found 2 /20's in my driveway told him..Dude with knife followed Belinda into the yard once where there was no escape but 8 of us waiting.. I caught a lewd subject in the catus outside a womans window he pulled a knife on me but ranaway anyway. Got a knife pulled on me in my place that guy ranaway too..Another knife on me in the driveway that guy got 10 Bucks I got robbed..Police raided my cottage thinking I was the Heroin dealer next door I offered beer and weed. A few other things have happened but cannot remember them all off hard memories..I have been thinking of jogging under the Milpas Underpants in my panties lately Hot out there..! DRINK WATER!

D8VANILLA- I haven't seen these frumpy ladies in my neck of the woods, but I have seen some sketchy folks cruising around and scoping out high clearance vehicles. (maybe for catalytic converter thefts?)

So these lamos can afford a Mercedes, and the 91unleaded @ 4 bucks a gallon but can't afford a damn purse? Makes no sense.

Those must be some VERY EXPENSIVE HANDBAGS ! to warrant any attention from the police. On a Sex and the City episode the women were "fighting" for a small chance to buy a big ugly red handbag that cost 5 THOUSAND DOLLARS !

How could "any" purse/bag be worth that much money ? ! It is utterly incomprehensible to me ?
